Fate of U.S. Adventurer Deliberated

HAVANA (P) — Military authorities said today no verdict has been reached in the military trial of American adventurer William A. Morgan and 13 others accused of conspiring against the Castro government. A military tribunal was reported Friday night to have sentenced him to death.

But defense attorney Jorge Luis Carro said this morning he had been advised the tribunal had not yet returned its verdict in the trial, which ended Friday. Carro had announced Morgan and his aide, Maj. Jesus Carreras, had been sentenced to be shot and the same information appeared in all government papers this morning. Nevertheless, military authorities said no decision had been reached but that one might be announced later today.

The earlier accounts said Morgan, a 31-year-old soldier of fortune, had been convicted of treason. These accounts continued: Morgan's Cuban defense lawyer promptly filed an appeal. He said "hope is not lost" and that he expects "good results." But military appeal courts rarely overrule sentences handed down by revolutionary tribunals.

The appeals court agreed to hear the arguments of lawyer Luis Carro this morning.

The death sentence must be carried out within 24 hours if the appeal is rejected. That means Morgan and an aide doomed with him, Maj. Jesus Carreras, formerly attached to the chief of staff in the Castro army, might be executed early Sunday.

During his two-day trial at La Cabana Fortress Morgan was accused of supplying arms to anti-Castro rebels in the Escambray Mountains — the same rugged peaks where he joined Castro's guerrillas in 1957 as a major.

Before the trial ended, Morgan pleaded innocent and insisted his faithful still lies with the revolution. Morgan has been locked up at La Cabana since his arrest last October.

At another trial 18 months ago, when a group of Cubans faced death for an anti-Castro plot that Morgan himself pried open as a counterspy, Morgan suggested hard labor for the guilty instead of execution. Some were shot later anyway.

His part in exposing that plot projected Morgan as a national hero in Cuba. He was put in charge of an experimental frog farm that exported $2 million worth of frog legs to the United States. Last October the Castro government arrested him and charged he used the farm as a cover to smuggle arms to anti-Castro rebels in the mountains.

Nixon Shuns Governor Race

Ex-Veeep Will Join Los Angeles Firm

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon said Friday night he will not run for governor of California next year.

He urged California Republicans today to launch a talent search for new faces in the 1962 election campaign.

"I am confident that we can win a sweeping victory in California," he told the Republican State Central Committee.

"But I have a word of warning. We cannot win by assuming that the present governor will inevitably fall on his face and be a pushover."

Cities Program of Action

The former vice president, in his first political speech since he lost the presidential election last November, outlined a program of action designed to restore the once-dominant GOP to power in the state.

Nixon offered to provide leadership to his home state party. But he did so only after ruling out his own possible candidacy for governor.

He authorized a group of legislators who conferred with him Friday night to quote him as saying: "I am not a candidate. I have no intention to be a candidate or institute a draft."

Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell, R-Los Angeles, said, however, Nixon can't be counted out entirely. It may be, Shell said, that the party won't be able to come up with anyone else strong enough to win.

Jobless Man Finds $240,000 In Street

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A canvas bag containing $240,000 in cash fell out of a Brink's, Inc., armored truck into a street. A rather out hunting a job found it and called the FBI.

"I thought if I kept that money I'd never be able to look my three kids in the face again," said Douglas William Johnson, 50.

When he works, which has been about half the time in the last six months, the neatly dressed, Negro maintenance man washes windows and hauls away rubbish. He averages, when working, about $100 a week.

Friday, with his wife Helen, 38, he drove to an apartment under construction where he had an appointment to see about cleaning up the debris. The man he was to see wasn't in.

Canvas Bag In Street

As he drove away the canvas bag lay in the street in front of his car.

The Brink's truck had been taking it from the United California Bank to the Federal Reserve Bank. Fifteen money bags were piled high inside the truck.

One apparently slid off the pile, hit a horizontal inside handle that released the door and fell into the street. A guard inside the truck sat facing forward updating his records, and didn't notice the open door.

Driver Robert Downs, 42, saw it when he happened to glance back through a rear window in his compartment.

Scores of police and FBI agents were scouring the truck's past route when Johnson telephoned the FBI: "I've got something here you folks might be looking for."

Mrs. Johnson told a reporter what had happened.

"We saw this bag laying in the street. My husband picked it up and threw it in the back of our station wagon. We drove about a block."

Started Shaking All Over

"Curiosity got the better of me and I turned around and looked at it I said, 'Do you know what you've picked up? There's $240,000 in that bag.' He said 'No! And started shaking all over.'"

Johnson said: "I was knocked off my feet. I never dreamed I'd have my hands on anything like that."

The bag was sealed but bore a tag stating the sum it contained in 10s and 20s.

The Johnsons drove home. He called a friend, David E. Taylor, a former Chicago policeman. "Taylor said, 'Don't call the police. They'll have every car in the downtown area.'"

By The Associated Press
Negro integration leader Martin Luther King Jr. has called on Atlanta's Negro community to calm down and accept the lunch counter desegregation agreement which halted the recent wave of sit-in demonstrations and boycotts in the downtown area.

King urged calmness and unity at a mass meeting held to clarify terms of the settlement worked out with the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce after some students expressed dissatisfaction.

Attended By 2,000

The rally, attended by 2,000 Negroes in the Warren Methodist Church Friday night, was one of three held in as many Southern states. Easter shopping boycotts were urged at meetings in Rock Hill, S. C., and Louisville, Ky.

The agreement between Atlanta Negro leaders and major department, drug and variety stores, announced Tuesday, re-opened lunch counters on a segregated basis with the provision they would be opened to all when school desegregation took place.

Atlanta public schools have been ordered to start desegregation in the 11th and 12th grades this fall. The University of Georgia at Athens admitted two Negro students in January.

Negro atty. A. T. Walden told the meeting the sit-in agreement was a necessary compromise and said that "no other city has made such a sweeping desegregation agreement in advance."

But the Rev. Samuel Williams said his understanding was that

Some diplomats were hopeful the talks just concluded in Siberia between Khrushchev and U.S.

U.N. Docket Issue Still Snags Debate on Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations General Assembly wound up the first week of its resumed session today, apparently as far as ever from agreement on whether to lop cold war items off its docket.

The smaller nations still looked for the Soviet Union and the United States to reach some accord on weeding out controversial issues, but they could derive little encouragement from East-West exchanges so far.

Main sticking point appeared to be Soviet insistence on a full airing of the arms question, highlighting Soviet Premier Khrushchev's call for total disarmament.

The United States reportedly does not oppose limited discussion of disarmament issues, but it wants to defer full debate until next fall and spend the interim in quiet negotiations.

Some diplomats were hopeful the talks just concluded in Siberia between Khrushchev and U.S.

Action Threatens Peace Conference

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Leftist Pathet Lao forces, showing a new strength that threatens peace plans, sent government troops fleeing in two directions today from a showdown battle for the Sala Phou Koun Road junction.

The rebel assaults drove government defenders eight miles north to the high ground of neighboring Sala Pou Keng. Other royal troops abandoned the strategic road completely near Muong Kassy, 22 miles south.

The junction controls the north-south highway in Central Laos and lies less than 100 miles north of Vientiane and only 40 miles south of the royal seat of Luang Prabang.

Stalls Invasion Drive

The Pathet Lao guerrilla action apparently stalls the government's intended invasion drive into the Plaine Des Jarres, the rebel stronghold lying eastward along Queen Astrid Highway.

Loss of a big stretch of the road from the administrative capital of Vientiane to Luang Prabang is the government's biggest military setback since January. But systematic destruction by government troops made the route useless to the advancing rebels.

The government said the northern sector around Sala Pou Keng was holding firm, with royal artillery in command. The fighting near Muong Kassy was said to be guerrilla style, with no heavy losses on either side.

Vientiane remained quiet. There was no public announcement of the setback Royal military sources said the outcome would be doubtful for a few days.

Drawn Into Talks

The strong rebel offensive came after leaders from two rival Lao factions met in Cambodia and put forward a program for stabilizing Laos. Observers said the two — former neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma and the gov-

Confident Living

By Dr. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Most Young People of Today Are O. K.

J. C. Penney and I were lunching together recently. "J.C." is 85 years old but you would never know it. Ruddy of face, alert and vigorous he belies his years. He has just written a fascinating autobiography, "View From the Ninth Decade" and I was telling him how greatly I enjoyed reading it.

"I want to write another book," he said, "one about youth. I think young people are being maligned. I have it in mind to come to their defense and tell what's right with them and counteract some of the negative things being said about our young folks." He was so enthusiastic about the idea that he inspired me to want to say a good word for the finest youngsters we have ever had in this country.

It so happened just about that time I received a letter from a young lady named Katherine Schmidt, a student at Gordon School, St. Paul, Minnesota. Katherine not only knows how to write is a good letter but she can spell, which is something! Her penmanship is perfect, too, which as they say is something more.

HERE IS WHAT Katherine (whom I have never met) has to say:

"Dear Rev. Peale; We, the children of the Sixth Grade of Gordon School want to show our appreciation for our many privileges we enjoy here in the United States, by becoming better citizens of this country we are so proud of.

"To bring this about we would like to set up for ourselves a children's code by which we may try to live this year.

"Would you be able to find time to write to us, telling us, what you think would be some of the things that make for good citizenship and that would help us to become a finer and better person?"

IT APPEARS THAT these youngsters are doing some serious thinking. They have a sense of privilege and have made the connection between privilege and responsibility. This shows a maturity that unfortunately some adults have not demonstrated.

Furthermore, they reveal a respect for standards to live by which indicates a basic belief in morality and ethics. They want to be good citizens, constructive members of society.

They must have a fine teacher in Katherine's sixth grade class who doesn't think of education as a materialistic process but an opportunity to mold the lives of young people to make of them better persons.

I started to work out the list. Then I remembered that I'm an adult and could therefore be considered perhaps old fashioned in my ideas. So I have sent to Katherine and her classmates a Teenager Code written by a teenager named Virginia Close of Dallas, Texas, which I am sure is a better code than I could formulate. It is:

1. Don't let your parents down. They brought up.

2. Stop and think before you drink.

3. Ditch dirty thoughts fast, or they'll ditch you.

4. Show-off driving is juvenile. Don't act your age.

5. Be smart; obey. You'll give orders yourself some day.

6. Choose your friends carefully. You are what they are.

7. Choose a date fit for a mate.

8. Don't go steady unless you're ready.

9. Go to church regularly. God gives you a week. Give Him back an hour.

10. Live carefully. The soul you save may be your own.

I AM ALSO SENDING to Katherine and her classmates copies of my booklet "How To Be Young and Enjoy It." In this we suggest to youngsters what to do about the desire to be popular, how to understand their parents, how to overcome an inferiority complex and how to handle the going steady problem.

If you would like a copy just write me in care of this news paper and I will send you one without charge.

Let's get together to help our youngsters—they sure are worth it!

County Fair Funds From State Readied

Columbiana County's fair will be one of 47 fairs receiving the maximum allotment of $8,784.06 from horse racing during the 1960 season, State Auditor James A. Rhodes announced today.

Ninety-two county and independent fairs plus the Ohio State Fair will share the $657,350.90 that was derived from deducting one-half of one per cent of pari-mutuel pools at race tracks in Ohio in 1960.

Twenty-four fairs in the state will receive $5,500 each and 21 will get $2,500 each, the state auditor reported.

Report Is Issued By County Recorder

LISBON — Recorder Richard G. Brian reported that his department in February filed 888 chattel mortgages for a consideration of $705,316. It also recorded 165 real estate mortgages for a consideration of $1,519,701 and cancelled 146 real estate mortgages for a consideration of $390,050.

A total of 432 instruments were recorded and 936 instruments were filed. The department collected $1,684.70 in fees during the month, Brian said.

CLOCK WATCHERS

Are men becoming smaller than the clocks they watch? As we rush from plane to plane, city to city, appointment to appointment, are we shrinking rather than growing?

For centuries men have gone forth from their homes to work, either by foot, ship, horseback or in a jet that can cross a continent between lunch and dinner. Whether in the end it was "worth it" has always depended on whether a man found time as the years went by for those things even more important than success—his family, his home, and his church.

If the demands of your job—the pace of your life—have chained you to a clock that is getting bigger than you are, pause to remember: in any human life there are only so many hours, none of which may be reclaimed once they've ticked by. Pause to realize, too, that it takes only a minute to pray, only an hour to go to church on Sunday—yet the benefits reaped from even such brief dedication to God can be eternal.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

An Essential State Department

The Government Operations Committee of the Ohio House is nearing the windup of a series of hearings on a bill to abolish the Department of Industrial and Economic Development.

The measure would re-establish the old Ohio Economic Development and Publicity Division of the Department of Commerce. Its sponsors offer two basic arguments in favor of the proposal:

1. Publicity is the only justifiable function of the department, and the old division could handle publicity much more cheaply.

2. Many local and area development groups have been working for years on other aspects of industrial growth, and the department should not be allowed to interfere with those efforts.

In their arguments before the committee, however, proponents of abolition of the department have:

1. Based most of their criticism of the department on its publicity functions, which seems to be inconsistent with their premise.

2. Failed to show that the department is interfering with the work of local development groups.

In fact, the department's defenders emphasize the state agency is intended to promote the economic interests of all Ohio by helping and coordinating the work of the local groups.

THE DEFENDERS also argue that there is a great deal more to economic growth than mere advertising. They cite research, compilation of vast amounts of information vital to corporate decisions to move or expand, effective planning for the state as a whole and its subdivisions, the availability of a cabinet-level agency as a contact point for interests both inside and outside the state.

There is validity to the argument that in these phases the department has not had enough time to prove its worth. Authorized by the 1959 session of the General Assembly at the request of Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, the new agency has been in existence only 16 months.

Most of that time has been spent in organizing the department and building up the background of information it needs to do the job assigned to it. Whether, from this point, it can begin to show tangible results is a question to be decided in the future.

There is no argument that industrial development is highly competitive. There is no questioning the fact that rival states have been spending more money and working harder than Ohio.

Consequently, a decision to abolish the department at this time would be premature. If, in the next couple of years, the department proves that it can meet and win the competition with other states, the money spent on it will be viewed as a wise investment.

If, on the other hand, no tangible evidence exists that the department is accomplishing that purpose, it will be time to reduce its status to that of the old division.

IN VIEW of the economic crossroads at which Ohio now stands, it would be better to postpone the decision on the department's fate at least until the General Assembly's 1963 regular session. It would be foolish to kill it off now, then decide in a few years it should be revived.

In the meantime, the cost factor can be handled adequately by taking a close look at the department's budget request for the next biennium.

As with most government agencies, the department's money probably can be pared without seriously hampering its ability to show whether it should survive.

We're Going All the Way

A Polaris submarine, the Patrick Henry, has finished a cruise during which it stayed under water continuously for 66 days and 22 hours. Its commander is quoted as saying the submergence could have continued under water much longer. It apparently stayed only long enough to break the record of a sister ship, the George Washington, which stayed under for 66 days and 10 hours.

While this record was being logged by the Navy, the Air Force was pointing with pride to its X15 airplane that had whizzed through space at a record speed of 2,650 miles an hour — fast enough to scorch the paint on the nose of the craft, which flies so fast that no human being could even attempt to do anything in its cockpit except survive to tell about it afterwards.

Meanwhile, on the drawing boards, in the missile factories and on the launching pads, rocket designers, builders and handlers were working feverishly to perfect space-eating machines that would go to the moon and the stars and back, with a view to carrying human beings. The idea is that we're going all the way on this thing if it takes everything we have.

It is going to be paid for somehow with the blood and sweat of our earth-bound wretches whose span of mobility reaches only from home to job to grocery store to tax office and return trip. This keeps down our overhead and leaves more for the up-and-comers who are setting the pace in our whiz-bang era. A great gulf has opened between us. Frankly we do not speak each other's language or think each other's thoughts. It is common these days for us to bat our eyes apologetically and admit we don't understand what these fellows are doing with our money and that if we did understand it we probably would be opposed to it. But it is of no consequence.

No one pays any attention to us, except in election years and just before tax collection time, when it's customary to take us into official confidence — not far but enough to make us wonder what would happen if they took us in any farther.

We might ask why and make a scene.

Hobos are reported carrying electric blankets and plugging them into unoccupied homes. Things are getting in a luxury mood all over. Tramp who used to knock on the door and ask for a snack may now say, "Pardon me, but I haven't had a cozy guest-room in days. Could you help a poor bum out?"

Delegate Without Portfolio

Kennedy Runs The Show

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.

"There's really nothing to it," an adviser to President Kennedy said. "It's just a matter of the President keeping a series of intimate, bilateral consultations going all at the same time on different matters, remember everything that is said, be ready to put in a call to an assistant secretary of state, read all the newspapers and magazines, keep up with the new cold war literature, be available instantly for unexpected crises, be kind to congressmen—and if you can do all those things and do them well, as my boss is doing, then you'll be a good President."

The key words in this somewhat whimsical job description are "bilateral consultations." For 14 years as a member of Congress, Mr. Kennedy ran his office affairs that way. The door to his private office in the old Senate Office Building was open to members of his staff. He was almost continuously on the telephone. His contacts by mail were wide and diverse. He kept himself immersed.

"Bilateral consultations" explain as much as anything else the difference between the new President and his predecessor. Mr. Eisenhower had frequent consultations, too, but they lacked the depth and diversity of Mr. Kennedy's.

In other words, speaking only comparatively, Mr. Eisenhower intentionally restricted his contact points to as few individuals as he could; Mr. Kennedy intentionally expands his to as many individuals as he can.

This is the fundamental change that has brought so many expressions of concern by conventional politicians that Kennedy "can't keep all those balls in the air at the same time." Until proved, this concern is not likely to have much impact on the new President.

Mr. Kennedy's total immersion in virtually all aspects of the nation's affairs—to the point that the smallest print claims his attention and few policy makers are immune from an unexpected phone call—may or may not turn out to be a better way to run the country than other ways that suited other presidents.

Some conventional and some not-so-conventional politicians and planners are concerned about the potential for crossed lines, personality feuds, conflicting advice and the like.

The debate on the new President's working style recalls two incidents in the habits of two other leaders.

During the early days of World War II, an American assigned to intelligence work in the British Air Ministry occasionally received his own briefing papers back with a scrawl in the margin in the Prime Minister's own handwriting. "Pray, sir, is it really..." (and a pertinent question followed). Mr. Winston Churchill was investigating the fine print.

In Washington, in the early 1940s when Franklin Roosevelt's political chieftain, Ed Flynn, backed one man for the Circuit Court of Appeals in the First District and the New Deal intellectuals backed another. Both prospects came from Maine.

The fight saw-sawed back and forth. Mr. Roosevelt made one effort after another to force a compromise. Finally the President called James H. Rowe, backing the intellectuals and Mr. Flynn to the White House and asked them to state their cases for one last time.

Then he told a story about a famous old salt from New Hampshire who, he said, went sailing in a gale one day and was swept off the schooner by one giant wave, "and swept right back on it by another."

FDR angled his long cigarette holder toward the ceiling and grinned. "Gentlemen," he said, "I've called you here to tell you that, since you can't agree, I am appointing that man's grandson to the vacancy in the First District."

That is one way to cure problems that may arise from conflicting advice. Messrs. Flynn and Row had both lost.

Ickes' Policies Revived

By RAYMOND MOLEY

Government Invasion of Business Blasted

One of the first announced policies of Interior Secretary Udall was that no one—yes, no one—should be employed in his department who did not favor putting the government in the business of producing and distributing electric power.

This revives and strengthens the policies of Harold Ickes, who not only made every effort to promote government competition with the private or investor-owned companies but by an official order commanded his employees to help promote and organize government power agencies where none existed before.

The Eisenhower administration established a policy of partnership, under which natural sources of power such as great dams would be built with both government and private funds.

That competition with government places investors in public utilities at a disadvantage needs no repetition here.

In order to attract investment, private companies must operate at a fair and governmentally regulated profit. They must pay heavy taxes to the federal, state and local governments.

GOVERNMENT plants need not bother about deficits. Those are paid by the taxpayers of the nation, most of whom get no benefit from the particular installation.

The comptroller general of the United States last year made an audit of the Southwestern Power Administration and found that it had been running deficits of several millions a year.

Now there comes Charles F. Luce, the Kennedy appointee as head of the vast Bonneville Power Administration which extends through the Northwest, who announces that Bonneville has been running in the red. But despite this, he announces policies of further extending the area of public power.

Most interesting is his statement that electric power from hydro-plants will be supplemented by a vast new plant at Hanford which will produce power by nuclear energy.

That plant now under construction, will not merely be, according to Luce, a prototype plant such as the Atomic Energy Commission has hitherto built for experimental purposes. It will be a very large producer of electricity in competition with the investor-owned companies of that region. It will be, Luce said, the world's largest atomic power plant, equal in energy production to 1½ Bonneville dams.

THERE ARE now in operation, producing commercial power, five nuclear plants. The most recent one put into service is the Dresden plant, built and operated by the Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago.

Others are the Yankee plant in Massachusetts, the Shippingport plant operated by the Duquesne Light Co., the Vallecitos plant operated by the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in California and the Santa Susana plant operated by the Southern California Edison Co.

Seven more plants are under construction and several more in process of planning.

The most interesting feature of this whole private development is that the various completed plants and those under construction use a variety of reactors.

This variety is essential to the future, for through such experimentation it will be possible to determine the most efficient of several means of utilizing atomic power in producing electricity.

The future of atomic power production will depend upon a final proved type of reactor.

To match such experimentation, the government must spend an immense amount of taxpayers' money. This in view of the activity of the companies would be wholly unnecessary.

Apparently the only reason why government proposes to enter the field of production is to carry out a fixed idea that ultimately government must monopolize this great and decisive area of economic life.

JFK's Bitter Riddle

By MARGUERITE HIGGINS

How do you show the uncommitted nations how peaceful the United States is, and how do you convince the British that this country is not "trigger happy," all without persuading the Communists that the U.S. is looking for a face-saving way to retreat under pressure of Soviet military power?

Laos is a case in point. President Kennedy, no doubt, does not need to be reminded that our side has been played for fools in Laos. But maybe the American people do.

That Red embattled country has been the test of the theory, first produced in Britain, that the way to contain Communist ambitions in Asia was to "neutralize" Laos.

The Communists powers, the theory went, could not "afford" to have a pro-Western government on their borders (and what about Turkey? Is that to be neutralized too?)

MR. KENNEDY has given this theory a good conscientious try. This country first agreed to the revival of the so-called "neutral" commission of Poland, India and Canada to go into Laos to obtain a cease fire.

This had been proposed by the Russians themselves. Then when the Russians stalled and stalled, and finally said no, the U.S. proposed a neutral commission composed of Cambodia, Burma and Malaya to seek the peace. We offered to withdraw our military advisers of moderate regime of Prince Boun Oum.

What has been Moscow's reaction? It was to conclude that the Kennedy administration was not only not trigger-happy but that it would never ever use the trigger to live up to its paper commitments to defend Laotian independence.

"It is only a matter of time till we take all of Laos," said a Soviet military adviser in Laos to two Western journalists who toured through Communist headquarters in the Laotian province of Xien Thong, in company of the "neutralist" former Premier of Laos, Souvanna Phouma.

These two Western eyewitnesses—an American and a Britisher—reported that while the Russians have kept the West talking about political solutions, it was rushing huge convoys of military equipment each week, pouring in Communist Viet Minh artillerymen and officers (to whom the reporters talked) and generally pursuing the kind of giant military build-up that threatens the whole country.

AND ALAS, this time the West does not have the face saving excuse (if "perhaps this is what the people want," for there is opposition—bitter opposition—by the local population, the Meo tribe, which has been ambushing the Communist Pathet Lao (now for the first time organized to fight position war instead of just guerrilla) at the rate of a half dozen incidents a day.

The standard Communist operational procedure in such cases is genocide—extermination of the resistant natives.

So much for the theory that "neutralization" can buy off Communist aggression in a country like Laos.

Why should there be an identity of interests between the Communists and ourselves in preventing the expansion of the war in Laos when the Communists are convinced that our side won't fight and that therefore more war means more victory for them?

Or are there any other ways to buy the Communists off—like helping the admission to the United Nations?

According to reports from London, the British are going to press the Kennedy administration for the "unconditional admission" of Red China to the United Nations. But no price would be asked for this concession.

It would be assumed that as Red China became "entangled" in such things as disarmament committees, it would behave less aggressively. The fact is, of course, that the Russians are already quite "entangled" in disarmament committees at the U.N. and this does not seem to hamper them in such places as Laos.

Why the Chinese—diagnosed as even more aggressive than the Russians—should be different is clearer to the British than it is to this writer.

Once Over

Dick Nixon is hunting for a suitable home in Los Angeles and we suggest the following classified ad:

WANTED: Home by a man who has had eight years of tension and recent exhausting experience in combat to retain base on Polomac. Must be in good location with pleasant view of California gubernatorial mansion. House must face east but have future window facing west. Prefer area in which Democratic neighbors are not predominant. Applicant desires privacy but not complete isolation.

Atmosphere must be suitable for tenant who is not sure where he is going but wants to reflect leisurely on where he has been.

Home should be within reasonable distance of airport and not too far from GOP headquarters. Modest grounds important as tenant has been covering too much territory for long time and, while his future is uncertain, he does not intend to concentrate on bamboo grass removal. Type of house optional but wants no part of a Cape Codder, for obvious reasons. Swimming pool, tennis courts, etc. Not required as they are too late now for political advantage.

No garden. Applicant is out of work but expects to be too busy for weeding and spraying. House should not set so far back from the road that it puts crimp in handshaking activities. Adjacency to banquet halls and TV stations of some importance.

Massive heating system not essential as applicant has had things plenty hot and years for cooler conditions. Apply Richard Nixon, general delivery.

Salem Downs Poland, 62-51, to Reach District Finals

Tangles With Warren Tonight For Berth In Regional at Kent

Don Dividson Hoops 27, Bill Beery Gets 19 As Quakers Subdue Bulldogs

By DICK BRAUTIGAM

Salem's Quakers fought their way into tonight's finals of the Youngstown Class "AA" District basketball tournament by jolting the Poland Bulldogs, 62-51, Friday night before a huge crowd at South Field House.

Warren Harding, the team that knocked Salem out of the Sectional Tourney last year, will furnish the opposition for the Quakers at 8 tonight. The Black Panthers earned their way into the District finals on Thursday when they downed Campbell Memorial, 59-50.

Reports are that Warren has improved a great deal since Salem handed them an 85-65 pasting on the Panthers' home court earlier in the season.

The big reason for Warren's getting this far in the tournament has been Jim Gardner, 6-6 sophomore, who developed rapidly as the season progressed. A natural athlete, Gardner had trouble with his grades early in the season and had just rejoined the team prior to the Salem game. He started against the Quakers but garnered just four points.

ONE OF THE TOURNEY officials who may referee tonight's game said last night after watching Salem beat Poland that he believes the Quakers "are 10 points better than Warren." He has refereed four of Warren's games this year but he has not worked any of Salem's contests.

The Quakers had a decided height advantage and they put it to good use against a scrappy Poland quintet last night.

Salem jumped off to a 16-8 advantage in the first quarter and never got into real serious trouble after that. The Bulldogs cut the margin to six points early in the second quarter but that was as close as the well-drilled Quakers allowed them to get.

Salem's biggest lead, 14 points, came with just under three minutes left in the game.

LEADING THE QUAKERS last night were 6-5 senior Don Davidson and 6-0-1 sophomore Bill Beery who combined to score 46 of Salem's 62 points.

Davidson fired in 27 points, mostly on long one-handers and some well-executed drives. He took some nice passes near the hoop and went high up on the board to push the ball down through the net.

"Big D" connected on 12 of 19 shots from the floor and three of four foul tries for his 27 points. Davidson hurt the Bulldogs with his rebounding almost as much as with his shooting. When he went up for the ball the big senior usually came down with it.

Beery, who does amazing things for a sophomore, pumped in 19 points last night.

Here is a cager who is never afraid to put himself on the spot. He doesn't hang back waiting for someone else to make the big play. Instead, he always is where the action is and everything this talented athlete lacks in experience he more than makes up for in determination and hustle.

Beery's 19 points last night enabled him to move around Bob Eskay as the number two scorer on the team. Davidson still leads with 376 markers. Beery has 271 and Eskay 268.

ESKAY WAS LIMITED to just three points last night. Salem's other points were divided among starters Ted Thorne and Tod Couchie and substitute Allen Ewing.

Outstanding in defeat was Bill Zimmer, 5-11 junior guard with an excellent shooting touch. The little sharpshooter gunned in nine fielders and a foul for 19 points. Most of his goals came on long one-handers. It was Zimmer's torrid shooting that kept the Quakers from turning the game into a rout.

The Bulldogs, as advertised, whipped the ball around like a hot potato once they got hold of it. Coach Howard Kitzmiller molded together a team of slick ball handlers, but Coach John Cabas' defense kept pushing the Bulldogs farther outside where almost all of their shots were taken.

The Bulldogs did get careless with the ball on several occasions when they tried to fast break. Twice they had three men coming in on Tod Couchie and still couldn't get a shot away.

Both teams missed connections on a few long passes.

AS FAR AS WORKING the ball around for a good shot, the Quakers were more effective than the Bulldogs.

Salem made 26 of 57 shots from the field for a fine 48.1 per cent. Poland hit 22 of 53 attempts for 41.5 per cent. The Quakers were 10 for 18 from the foul line while the Bulldogs were 7 for 14.

Officials Paul Hoskins and Red Angelo called 13 persons on Poland and 11 on Salem.

Salem's second unit, captained by John "Beano" Borrelli, played the final minute and a half of last night's game.

Poland, one of the standouts in the Tri-County League this season, closed with a 12-10 record. Salem now has won 17 games and lost four. The Quakers had previously knocked Brookfield and Struthers from tournament play. If the Quakers can defeat Warren tonight, they will be one of only 16 Class AA tourney teams left in the state. The Youngstown District winner will advance to the Kent Regional which gets underway Wednesday night.

Palmer Grabs 1-Stroke Lead At Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, seeking a repeat victory in the $20,000 Pensacola Open golf tournament, knocked seven strokes off par in the second round to grab the lead at the halfway mark.

Palmer's 73-65—138 going into today's third round gave him a one-stroke margin over Gary Player and Dave Ragan.

Player, a South African now playing out of Langhorne, Pa., stood at 73-64—139. The 64 was the best round of the tournament so far and matched Player's all-time competitive low. He turned in an eagle, seven birdies and a bogey in scoring 64.

Ragan, of Orlando, Fla., hit 15 greens and birdied three holes en route to a 69 to go with his opening round 70 over the par 36-36—70 course.

Four tied at 140. They were George Bayer, South Pasadena, Calif., 70-70; Walker Inman, Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., the first round leader, 68-72; Don Fairfield, Jacksonville, Fla., 72-68; and Tommy Bolt, Crystal River, Fla., 72-68.

Tied at 141 were Jimmy Clark, Long Beach, Calif., 70-71; Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill., 71-70; and Gay Brewer, Crystal River, 73-68. Dow Finsterwald, Tequesta, Fla.; Mike Souckh, Grossinger, N.Y.; Freddie Haas, New Orleans; Tommy Jacobs, Bermuda Dunes, Calif.; and Bob Keller, Eglin AFB, were deadlocked at 142.

Those failing to survive the 142 cutoff point included Howie Johnson, Lemont, 150; Doug Sanders, Ojai, Calif., 152; Lionel Hebert, Lafayette, La., 152; and Dr. Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn., 158.

The field was cut to the low 61 pros and 10 amateurs for the final two rounds.

Dan Krichbaum Wins Varsity Letter At Wooster College

Dan Krichbaum, of Salem, is the only freshman on the College of Wooster basketball squad to win a major award for the 1960-61 season. Coach Jim Ewers has just announced.

Krichbaum attracted Coach Ewers' attention when the squad reported last November 1. By the time the season opened early in December Krichbaum had won a starting guard post.

No one was ever able to dislodge him and he started all 24 games which resulted in 18 wins against six losses. In the Ohio Conference regular season Wooster was 9-3 to tie with Akron Zippers for third place.

In the Ohio Conference tournament Wooster won from Heidelberg and Mt. Union, then lost in the finals of the northern division to Akron.

For the season Krichbaum scored 305 points, second high for the Scots. He made 128 field goals on 516 shots and made 49 of 72 free throws.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Krichbaum, 793 East Sixth Street, and was graduated from Salem Senior High last June. In scholastic athletics he won awards in basketball and track.

But Champ Isn't Overconfident

Feeling General, Floyd 'Can Name The Round'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The feeling seems almost general at this resort area that Floyd Patterson can almost name the round in which he'll blast Ingemar Johansson in their third heavyweight title fight Monday night.

The expressions of solid confidence in the re-crowned champion's fishing fists is strikingly reminiscent of the aura of invincibility that seemed to surround Patterson before his first fight with the Swedish invader in 1959.

There are several exceptions to this feeling of overconfidence this time, and notably—Patterson himself.

"I remember vividly what happened in that first fight," said Patterson. "Ingemar has a terrific right and who should know better than me? I respect him greatly."

Floyd became the first dethroned heavyweight king ever to regain the title when he flattened Johansson in the fifth round last June.

The third fight will be the last in the series, said Floyd.

"I wouldn't want a return if I lost," he said. "There are other contenders who have been waiting a long time. The loser should step back and give the other contenders a chance."

Asked if he would fight Sonny Liston, the No. 1 contender from Philadelphia, if he beats Johansson, Patterson replied: "Sure I'll fight Liston. But he'd have to get rid of some of the people around him."

The champion declined to name them.

The promoters of the Monday night title fight, Feature Sports, Inc., said business was picking up at the boxoffice. Bill Fugazy, the president, said he was hopeful of grossing between $500,000 and $600,000.

As far as the fighters are concerned that's chicken feed compared to what they'll make on the closed circuit telecast, the movies and radio. The "live" gate will bring each fighter about $100,000. But Irving Kahn, president of TelePrompTer, which handles the supplementary rights, estimates that Patterson will get close to a million dollars and Johansson a little less from his company.

Kahn estimated the TV, movies and radio receipts would be over $3 million and possibly close to $4 million.

Outside of holding press conferences Friday, the fighters did little else. They plan just to limber up, run and rest until fight time Monday night.

Evansville Upset In Cage Tourney

Defending Champ Bows to Lincoln

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The small college boys took over the spotlight in college basketball Friday night. And if the first round of the NCAA college division tournament is any criterion, top ranked Ohio State better beware in the big NCAA (university division) tourney opening.

Here's what happened: Evansville, the defending champion, was beaten by Lincoln (Mo.) 90-77. Chapman (Calif.), last year's runnerup, was beaten by Long Beach State 70-66. Kentucky Wesleyan, No. 3 last year, lost to Belmont Abbey 74-62 and Cornell of Iowa, No. 4, a year ago, tumbled before South Dakota State 30-71.

This is akin to Ohio State, the defending national collegiate champion, and Cincinnati, who won third place a year ago, being knocked off in their opening games in the big NCAA competition next week. California and NYU, who finished second and fourth last year, are not in the NCAA tourney this time.

California came through with a surprise 69-57 victory over Southern California, the Big Five champs, in one of the four big college games Friday night. Oregon kept alive its hopes of making the NCAA tourney by nipping Oregon State 54-52. Washington took Idaho in overtime 70-65 and UCLA beat Stanford 69-55 in the other major games.

Prairie View, which finished No. 1 in the final small college Associated Press poll, came through with a 79-68 triumph over Superior (Wis.). Tonight the Texans face a formidable South Dakota State team in the final of the Midwest Regional at Brookings, S. D.

Ohio State winds up its regular season today against Illinois and the Buckeyes are hopeful of chalking up their 29th straight triumph.

In other major games today that winds up the regular season, Utah and Colorado State Univ. play for the Skyline title and an NCAA berth. Xavier of Ohio and Chicago Loyola meet with the winner going to the NCAA. Arizona State Univ. and New Mexico State play for the Border Conference crown and a chance to play in the NCAA. Kentucky, which beat Vanderbilt Thursday for the right to play in the NCAA, goes after its 11th straight victory in a game at Chicago against Marquette.

Mark Fenton averaged 11.1 for Capital Five

Mark Fenton, former Salem High Varsity cager, averaged 11.1 points per game this season for Capital University which finished the season with a 19-5 record and an undisputed second place finish in the tough 14-team Ohio Athletic Conference.

Fenton, a senior, played in all 24 of his teams games, scoring 265 points. He served as co-captain along with Duane Pelkey of Worthington who won the "Most Valuable Player Award" for the second straight season.

Cincinnati Elder Dumped

Upsets Hit Ohio Cage Tourneys

By FRITZ HOWELL

Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Cincinnati Elder's Panthers, top-ranked in the final Associated Press AA poll, were on the sidelines today as a wave of upsets swept through Ohio's high school district basketball tournaments.

The Queen City powerhouse, after winning 20 in a row, was ousted 66-61 Friday night in the Cincinnati semi-finals by Cincinnati Withrow which had been beaten four times.

Seven of the top 10 in Class AA were still on deck, however, with only 32 of the 399 teams surviving for tonight's district finals. Oddly, the three defeated teams in the elite list were all from the rugged Southwest District which has dominated the championship picture for decades.

Ousted from the top 10 are Elder, third-ranked 1960 champion Dayton Roosevelt, and ninth-place Hamilton Garfield.

Springfield's 1925 and 1950 champions also fell out of the running Friday night, but the Wildcats went out like champs as they dropped a one-point, 66-65, to Urbana's unbeaten 21-game winners.

The big casualties in Class A were Frazesburg, last years runner-up to Salem Local, and Delphos St. John's 1949 champions. Frazesburg was a 50-43 victim of Old Washington at Marietta as the 27-game winners won a berth in the Athens regional. Delphos St. John was beaten 64-63 by Mount Victory.

Three other Class A teams also won regional spots Friday night, Centerburg heading for Athens with an 18-5 record after defeating Millersport 52 - 42; Madison South going to Troy after a 68-60 verdict over Pleasant of Marion County; and Dennison St. Mary whipping Sugar Creek Garaway 62-57 for a berth in the Canton playoffs.

The other dozen Class A regionalists, and all 16 in Class AA, will be selected tonight.

Only four of the top 10 in the final Class A ratings, including the top three are still in action with 527 of the 555 quintets eliminated.

Unbeaten Ayersville (25-0), Convo Crestview (21-1) and Kingman (23-0) finished in the win, place and snow spots in the poll, with tenth - place Youngstown Liberty (23-1) rounding out the survivors. Middletown's seven-time state champs, beaten eight times this season but always tough at tournament time, are still scrapping. The Middies face a tough one tonight as they go against unbeaten Franklin (21-0) at Cincinnati.

Bell Still Favoring Shoulder, But Tribe Brass Unconcerned

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Gary Bell, whose pitching arm is expected to have something to do with the way the Cleveland Indians finish this year, still appears to be favoring the sore shoulder that bothered him at the end of last season.

The Indian brass deny there is any concern over the situation, and pitching coach Mel Harder says he is sure Bell will be ready to cut loose and throw hard before the opening April 11 at Detroit.

At present, the 24-year-old right hander throws only about one pitch in five with a natural delivery, says Harder, who is working slowly with Bell to get the kinks out of his delivery.

Bell, who won nine and lost ten last year after posting 12-10 and 16-11 records his first two seasons, says his arm doesn't hurt, "but I just don't feel that I'm throwing well." He was sent home near the end of last season with a severe shoulder ache.

Bell has been pitching batting practice regularly, but on orders from Harder he is not throwing hard.

The coach said he won't let Bell throw hard "until we're absolutely sure his motion is okay. He's not going to pitch in the exhibition until the movement is natural."

Every pitcher who has had arm trouble has two hurdles to overcome, Harder remarked. "First, he's got to learn to go back to his natural motion, not to favor the arm."

"Second, he's got to cut loose. It's normal not to want to do that, for fear of hurting yourself again. Subconsciously, perhaps, a pitcher may let an injury prevent him from firing hard."

Wittenberg, Wabash Vie In NCAA Finals

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Wittenberg, a 43-28 winner over Youngstown, takes on Wabash College tonight in the final round of the NCAA College Division Mid-East regional basketball tournament.

Wabash defeated South Carolina State 94-83 in Friday night's other opening round game.

Wittenberg, the nation's leading defensive quintet whose opponents have averaged only 46.5 points a game, was even stung against Youngstown. The Tigers allowed Youngstown only eight points in the first half while they were content to score 14.

Wittenberg was ahead 29-17 midway through the second half when the Tigers went into a stalling, control - ball game. Youngstown tried to combat this with a half-court press, then shifted to a full-court press, but neither tactic was very successful.

At Thrasher was top scorer for the winners with 12 points. Youngstown didn't have one man in double figures.

Ohio State Seeks 29th Straight Today

By The Associated Press
Ohio State's Buckeyes, national and Big Ten basketball champions, aim for a clean sweep in regular season competition today in a regionally televised matinee at Illinois.

The Buckeyes have a string of 28 consecutive victories—23 this season—and go into the finale with a perfect 13-0 conference record.

If the Buckeyes defeat Illinois, and they'll be heavily favored to do so, they will become the first Big Ten team in 42 years to go through an entire season without defeat. The last to do so was Minnesota in 1919 when the Gophers finished with a 13-0 record.

Ohio State also can become the first team to go through a conference season without defeat since Illinois' Whiz Kids finished with a 12-0 mark in 1943.

Illinois has a 5-8 conference record but should be keyed up for the contest against the team selected No. 1 in The Associated Press poll.

Three other games are scheduled in the closing of the Big Ten campaign.

Iowa (9-4) will be at Northwestern (6-7) Purdue (9-4) will be at Wisconsin (4-9) and Michigan (2-11) will be at Indiana (7-6).

Only Iowa and Purdue have a chance of finishing second while Indiana could go into a fourth place tie with Minnesota, which has finished its season with an 8-6 mark, by defeating Michigan.

Pirate Exhibition Games To Be Aired

KDKA Radio and the Pirate network will carry six 1961 Pittsburgh Pirate exhibition games from Florida beginning next Saturday with the game against the American League Minnesota Twins from Orlando. The other games to be broadcast are Sunday, March 19, St. Louis Cardinals from St. Petersburg; Saturday, March 25, Cincinnati Reds from Tampa; Sunday, March 26, Chicago White Sox from Sarasota; Saturday, April 1, St. Louis Cardinals from Homestead, Fla.; and Sunday, April 2, St. Louis from Ft. Thompson brought from President Kennedy might decide whether the Soviets will press their demands for liquidation of the U.N. Congo command and their slashing attacks on Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

Diplomats speculated that the Thompson-Khrushchev talks may also help determine whether the two powers can agree on dropping cold war items from the agenda.

A number of African delegates have been pressing for immediate assembly debate on the Congo crisis, but with the Security Council scheduled to continue discussion next Tuesday on racial violence in Portugal's West African territory of Angola, it was doubtful the Congo would come up until later in the week.

Authoritative sources here said Friday night seven more Asian-African nations are considering sending troops to beef up the U.N. force in the Congo.

If all seven go through with their plan, the 14,500-man force will be bolstered by more than 6,000 men, it was learned.
